4. Principles

The College acknowledges, accepts, and values the right to freedom of intellectual inquiry as central to its contributions in teaching, research and scholarship, and is committed to promoting and protecting this freedom. It ensures, as far as possible, that staff and students are able to exercise their right to academic freedom in undertaking teaching, learning and research without fear of discrimination or harassment

In acknowledging, accepting, and valuing the right to freedom of intellectual inquiry the College does not endorse the views expressed by its academic staff. All views expressed by academic staff will be taken to be the views of the individual who expresses them, even when an affiliation with the College is indicated. Views on behalf of the College can only be expressed by its executives if specifically authorised to do so.

Freedom of intellectual inquiry will not be permitted as a defence for acting unlawfully, disrespectfully, or for the exercise of poor judgement. In their exercise of freedom of intellectual inquiry, academic staff will also always observe the Staff Code of Conduct and act in accordance with the Mission, Values, and Values of the College.

While academic staff are professionally obliged to examine all relevant data and test assumptions, they are also required to conduct themselves within the Australian legal environment, observing both the Privacy Act and the Copyright Act as well as the code of conduct of the relevant professional bodies. In exercising their rights and responsibilities associated with freedom of inquiry, CHS staff are expected to support the ethos and mission of the College and to act in accordance with the Staff Code of Conduct.

If a staff member or student clearly contravenes the principles outlined in this Policy, he or she may be in breach of the relevant Code of Conduct and could face disciplinary action.

The College has the right and the obligation to take disciplinary action as necessary against staff and students whose behaviour(s) violate the rights of freedom of intellectual inquiry of others, or who otherwise behave in a manner contrary to this policy or related policies, including Academic Integrity Policy, Responsible Conduct in Research and Scholarship Policy, and Staff Code of Conduct.

Appeals or disputes concerning any decision taken in relation to this Policy should be made under the relevant Grievance Procedure.

5. Responsibilities

5.1 College Responsibilities

The College is responsible for supporting the right of its academic staff and students to engage in intellectual inquiry and foster critical debate and scientific discourse. The College will support this right by providing and facilitating a positive environment that promotes, among others:

- robust and collegial debate;
- the testing and sharing new ideas, theories and topics of interest;
- academic integrity and honesty;
- the responsible conduct of research and scholarship;
- a diversity of opinion and the right to publicly express that opinion without fear of favourable, unfair or prejudicial treatment; and
- the exercise of professional judgment when engaging in teaching, research, and scholarship.

5.2 Academic staff

Academic staff should expect that their right to hold and express values of their own choosing will be respected even when those values are being questioned. Freedom of intellectual inquiry carries the associated responsibility to exercise professional care and competence. In exercising their right to freedom of intellectual inquiry, academic staff will:

- observe the Staff Code of Conduct;
- act in a lawful and ethical manner;
- ensure that all discourse of academic freedom of expression is undertaken reasonably, in good faith, and in accordance with all research ethics considerations as appropriate;
- recognise and acknowledge that they are not speaking on behalf of the College;

- offer opinion and commentary on matters of which they have an acknowledged level of expertise;
- disclose any potential conflicts of interest (e.g. personal and/or professional relationships, and external funding sources);
- · accept the critical scrutiny of others; and
- not to impinge on the ability of others to freely engage in academic debate.

With and among the student body in particular, all academic staff will:

- promote freedom of intellectual inquiry, critical thinking and creative reasoning; and
- encourage, facilitate and support positive, analytical discourse.

6. Records

Records associated with this policy will be maintained according to the Records Management Policy and Record Retention and Disposal Schedule.
